In December of 1998 Siempre Así launched their new CD "Diez Y Cuarto" ("Diez" because they were ten people in the band at that time, and "cuarto" because it was their fourth CD. They thought it would be nice to record TV clowns' songs that they used to sing during their concerts in a casual way. In a certain way, this gave them the opportunity to go back to their childhood.

Thank to this tribute that they did to the Aragón family, a few months later, Miliki invited them to sing on his record "A Mis Niños de Treinta Años", an unforgettable experience that increased record sales and brought a Grammy to Miliki.
