Angelillo sang all kind of rhythms and he is a pretty good singer. It is worth your while to discover Angelillo or to enjoy his splendid voice and his way to sing. He has also song and recorded a lot of soleares, seguiriyas, malagueñas, tarantas, mineras, murcianas, saetas, verdiales, etc. successfully. And of course all the range of american songs. Accompanied on the guitar by Ramón Montoya, Sabicas, Luis Yance, Miguel Borrull, Manolo de Badajoz, Patena, Habichuela, Antonio Molina and Niño Posadas. With orchestra. Non only "pasodobles" and Andalusian songs. Including flamenco orchestra: some people say that he was the first flamenco artist singing accompanied by an harmonic orchestra. His colombianas and fandangos are paradigms of the experimentation and the musical miscegenation but they came naturally.
