Two original records by Ketama, in this special series that the 'Nuevos Medios' record label has released for people who want to complete their collection of albums by the band, which has recently split up.

The strings of the African kora join those of the Spanish guitar, the palm-clapping, the cajón (box-drum)... in this record born from the meeting between Ketama, Tournani Diabate, the legendary musician from Mali and the cantaor José Soto. They are joined by the English double-bass player Danny Thompson, and this is how this work arises, the fruit of the incredible ease with which flamenco can absorb and merge will all kinds of music. It is indispensable as proof that flamenco evolves and doesn't have any frontiers.
